

Kishana Osei (she/her pronouns) is the Executive Director of the Massachusetts Women of Color Network (MAWOCN). She's been devoted to the field of anti-violence work for the past 13 years and has experience in advocacy, direct services for survivors, housing, and nonprofit management. Kishana openly identifies as a survivor of domestic violence, sexual assault, and other injustices. She shares that her personal experiences led her to this work, where she has found joy, healing, and purpose. Kishana values integrity, accountability, open-mindedness, and true-active listening, and has an eagerness and excitement to lead, learn, and serve.
